The greatness of the change that has come to the world with the coming of Christ may be gauged in some degree by the fact a writer who has made the subject one of deep and careful subject one of deep and careful research sums up the character-istics of the period in which the Saviour was born in two phrases: "Heartless cruelty, and unfathomable corruption

Difficulties aro valuable, too. because they constitute an unfailing test of character. They discover to those who are willing to learn where the sources of their own weakness lie.

They discover men to them-selves. The capacity for being deceived is so great that it is only by sorrows, pains, afflictions, and contradictions that they can really and truly test the purity of the mo-

What Are You Doing in the Campaign?

Then, difficulties reveal men to God. It was when Abraham had laid Isaac on the altar, and lifted the knife to strike, that God said, "Now I know that thou fearest God." Doubtless He knew the loyalty of Abraham's heart before, but it cannot be denied that He knew it afterwards in another and more antisfying sense than before. And so, when men leave father and mother, and husband and wife, and houses and lands, and face tribulation and sorrow and difficulty for His sake, He koows the reality of their affection, and is sure of their service in every coming hour.— The War-rior's Daily Portion," No. II. Introduced by the General, Commissioner Larsson was received as the representative of a country which has all the romance of a great new enterprise, Czecho-Slovakia, in the bold and steve enterprise. Czecho-Słovakia, in the bold and successful bid for political freedom which it has made, represents the spirit of liberty and pro-gress for which the Salvation Army has stond during the lass fifty years. "We are glad," said the (henera, "to have him hack in the Old Land again." The Commissioner reknowledged his reception with much feeling, thanking fand not only for his safe return, but also for the wonderful work and happenings which he had witnessed while

"Let me tell you, comrades," he said, "that you have scarcely any conception of the value and greatness of the Concern to which you belong, greatness of the Concern to which you belong. It is only when you travel across the world and find that there is not a broken or injured link in the chain of our activities that you begin to real-ize what the Salvation Army is and what it stands for among the nations,"

And what has made the Salvation Army what it is in such a short time? The Commissioner answered the question by the repetition of a stalement made by a leading Canadian military chief:—

"It is now recognized by Governments, by communities, and by neuple of all sorts, that the Salvation Army stanls for service." "And, continued the Commissioner, "helital this service is truly spiritual force, fiverwhere I have found that Salvation Army mee and women have found that Saivanian Army mee and wanten may struck their roots deep into the national, social, and spiritual life: Salvanionists are putting the spirit of Jesus Christ into all they do.... "Helped You Along"

Referring to his recent retirement from the position of Chief of the Staff and responsible administration, the Commissioner said:—

"This naturally brought forth many comments in the commries with which I have been closely in the countries with which I have been closely associated. Some of the remarks were pathetic and full of regret, while others were exceedingly homorous. Soutebody raised the question as to how I thought I could stand the experience of heing a disused old shoe. "Vell," I replied, the old shoe, whether on the shelf or mader the shelf, and show whether on the such or induct the such, can find some comforting reflections by saying to its weaters. CAMPAIGN SUGGESTIONS

Some Good Advice From a Veterant

In order to make the "Out of the Ruis" Campaign a success (writes linvoy Oshorne), it is necessary that we should, first of all, have holy Envoy Oshorhe), it is necessary that we should, first of all, have holy hearts and clean hands to lift up the hanner of Calvary. We must hold up the standard and not lower it to suit neople's fancies or desires. Then we must be revived in our own hearts before we can bring own hearts hetere we can about a revival amongst others, about a revival amongst others.

I would suggest holding half-nights of prayer, say from eight pa m. till midnight. Personal sacrifice and fervent prayer is the way to get souls saved. Demonstrations, raids, hand, bills, musical attractions; §6, are all right id their place, but they will never bring about a revival qu-less backed up with prayer and holy Enriller I would suggest that meetings be not unduly prolonged just for the sake of talking. Better to close it down than to just fill in time. On the other hand, if there are good signs that God is working, don't he in a hurry to close. More people have been saved in Army meetings between 9.30 and 11.30 p.m.

there a distinct criminal type?"

During his lifetime the Doctor took exact measurements of three thousand convicts, and the tabulation of these is said to clearly prove that to quote the cable, which is special to the Toronto Globe, "so far from possessing a distinctive type "of their auto eximinals are of as many types as the rest of us-ministers of religion, university professors respectable tradesines, etc." Mental deficiency, and circumstances undoubtedly have a great deal to do with the making of some types of criminals, but from all we can gather, the verdict of those who hare most to do with the men and women whose deeds number them with the class with which we are dealing, is that in the main a criminal is a criminal because for the ente of gaining something, whether it be money, self-gratification or expected pleasure, he or she have chosen to commit crime. Some have done so after deliberation, others, may he, more hasty in disposition, have acted on the impulse of the moment, but in all, speaking generally, there has been an act of the will, and a choice made helween right and wrong.

Not Up Against a Dead Wall

WHAT is the practical application of this? It is that those who work for the reclamation of criminals, instrad of being up against a dead wall of fixed characteristics which have from the beginning made the thief a thief, and will keep him a thief to the end, whether he will or will not, are dealing with men . and women who are accountable for their actions and who are capable of being stirred into making up their minds to "eeess to do evil" and hy the Grace of God, no matter how habitual wrong-doing may have become with them, carrying their reso-Institute Hite AChest

There are invereries surrounding the free-will of man which it is difficult to understand, or explain, but its existence besides being one of those Things which, whether we understand them or not, are among the into account, is the basis of all effort for the Salvetton of body and soul of men, and the greatest and grandest incouragement for all who are ena free agent, any effort to belo him would be wasted; but as he is, and can choose right if he will, no effort can enouse right that with, to enorse is too much to put forth in his behalf, andtho sacrifice too great. Gold Himself demonstrated this by giving His own Son to die for sinners.

Outside Power Needed

"I'll! fact that man needs a power outside of himself to enable him to break away from habits that hold him in bomiage, and requires that thorough reconstruction which is called regeneration, does not affect the question, for while neither man's will, nor anything he can do can save him, it is a fact that if he will "he can link on to the Power that will ille for blin all that he requires. "Is it difficult to trach the people the object of the Salvation Anny?" "Ves, in one way it is. You see, years ago the conney, or rather what was then Bohemit. Moraria, South Silesia and Skovakia, was Pto-testant. Then Roman Catholicias was made the State religion. Towas made the State religion. Teday, however, harely twenty per eent, of the people care at all for the Church. In our open-air meetings the first thing we have to do is to explain to the people that we do not belong to the State Church, or they would not the state Church, or they would not the state Church, or they would not instent to us. If they thought we were connected with any church such as they know it, we should never make progress. Fur-ther, on accumin of the practices prether, on account of the practices pre-vailing in the State Church, the Bible is not known at all. One of my big difficulties as getting Bibles printed in the language, so we have to start and teach the people the ele-mentary truths of Christinuity.

People Seeking Salvation

"A hall has been taken in Prague, on a one-year lease, where meetings have been commenced. At the first there were four volunteers for Sal-vation, and I have heard from Naior Holm that in the second meeting one, and in the third, ten, convent one, and in the third, ten content were registered. So you see that once we get established in Halls of our own, the work from a spiritual standpoint will make headway.

"A Collection Day was held tecently in Prague, when many society ladies and gentlemen assisted in the collection, of seven thousand fine hundred crowns for the Salvakia Army. The band of the police fores and which they gave to the salvakia and the proper of the salvakia and the proper of the salvakia and the proper of the salvakia and the salvakia and the first place of the salvakia and the salvakia and the first place of the salvakia and the s

When the work is fairly established When the work is tarry enamined in Prague, it is intended to send from that centre native-taised Officers into the many towns and chief of the Republic.

A NEW COMPETITION

SUITABLE TO THE SEASON

In the Christmas "War Cry

Special note should be taken of the Competition for Christmas Stories which is announced in our Christmas Number, "The War Cry" has frequently arranged competitions in connection with which prizes have been offered for the heat stories suitable for use in our Christmas Number. Good success has attended these, but we think still better can be done. Usually the competition has been timed to close when the Christmas Number has been in course of preparation, and it has thus been running at a period of the year when there has been wanting all the memory-stirring influences of the Christmas Season.

This is remedied in the present instance. The Competition is open now and will remain open all through the Christmas Season and sufficiently long afterwards to give time for the committing to paper and sending to "The War Cry" Office particulars of those fine stories that are sure to be told, and which deserve wider publicity than that of the fire, or stove-side circle.

Full particulars of what is wanted, and of the valuable awards which are offered for competition will be found in the Christmas Number of "The War Cry."
